THE NEXT HOUSE.

Senator Quay Claims a Small Republican Majority.

Clerk Clark Admit the Possibility for the First Time

Clerk Clark Says Doubtful Districts will Determine it.

His Events in Deciding the Completion of the House.

Completion of the Next House.

NEW YORK, November 16.—[Washington special to The Press.] General Clark, clerk of the house of representatives, believes that Republicans have been elected and that our dispatches are wrong. This is based on the assumption that Wilson, Democrat, is elected from West Virginia. The doubtful districts in Governor Clark's estimate are the First California, Texas, Kentucky, Second, North Carolina, and First, Third and Fourth of West Virginia. These districts he has down as doubtful because they are claimed by both parties by a majority so small that the official count must be awaited to determine the result. In the case of Representative Bacon, democrat, of New York who is, and is known to have been defeated by 800 majority, General Clark expects a contest will ensue. Of course he is confident, and that is the only case in the next house will not be for either way.

Relative to the functions of the clerk in the organization of the new house and the power he is supposed to be able to use in swearing in the existing members, General Clark says he does not see that he has any discretion in the matter. The law requires him to call the roll of members-elect and to swear in such persons as present proper certificates of election his name will be placed on the roll, and not otherwise. There can not be duplicate certificates because there are at present no dual state governments so there have been no times past or present.

General Clark said from official records before the house the republicans had carried a majority of one in the next house, and this was brought up to the present time but one certificate had been presented to him, namely, that of Representative Herman, of Oregon. Certificates are usually a long time coming to us as they are not issued until some time after the official returns are made public by the secretary of state. Governor Pennoyer has not taken his second January, and in many states the date is equally remote from election day.

Reduction of the volume of both parties to a very narrow minority from these facts of our success an interesting possibility when it is remembered that no less than six persons who were elected to the Fiftieth congress died before they had been sworn in or after they had taken their seats and that there is a strong possibility that there will be some deaths among 325 men of three years during the long period of fourteen months intervening between election day and the assemblage of the new congress.

COLORADO COLLEGE.

After once for the last two weeks has kept up to the average and instructors report satisfactory progress in all departments.

The college Y. M. C. A. have held services each Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and were well attended. Prof. [illegible] of the local university [illegible] the residence of Mr. Patterson [illegible] Monday at 4 p. m.

The second year German [illegible] Schiller's Lay of the Bell [illegible] Junghen von Orleans. [illegible] under Prof. Stanford are [illegible] good progress in Greek and Latin.

Two thousand dollars have already been [illegible] for the erection of [illegible]

The special fund for the [illegible] each has greatly improved the character of that part of college work.

The students are getting hold of the military drill, and are already beginning to appreciate the benefit of it. The exercises are just now for the promotion of right breathing, something very essential to health in this rarefied atmosphere.

A committee consisting of Rev. Rich and Montague, Rev. J. S. Black and Rev. James B. Gregg, has been appointed by the trustees to arrange for the inauguration of President Slocum, and have decided to place it some time in December.

The musicale Friday afternoon was a pronounced success in a financial way, as well as a musical sense, and was as well as a treat to the music loving people who attended. The programme consisted of selections, instrumental and vocal, by our best home talent, assisted by Miss Robinson of Denver. Miss Robinson possesses a full, sweet voice, of good compass. Her articulation is remarkably clear and added much to the effectiveness of her rendering of Dressler's "To Sylvia," which was loudly encored. Her rendition of Tom Hood's "Love song," an encore, was superb. She was again encored upon singing Tosti's exquisite "Good Bye." The New Kingdom." Miss Eichelberger's piano solo, "La Fileuse," [illegible] was extraordinarily executed. Miss [illegible] deserves special mention, as [illegible] violin solo, Hollender's "Spinning Song," gained him a recall. The remainder of the programme fully equalled [illegible] execution.

The musicale will [illegible] the College [illegible] fund about $200. Thanks are due Mrs. Frank Waters for valuable services rendered, and also to the executive committee of the Pharos for the [illegible] office of the Pharos for the [illegible]

Mr. Fowler Bemis [illegible] the title of "The Bishop," he [illegible] having sold seventy-five tickets.

In the district court yesterday morning Williams Kelly and John C. Rowden were arraigned on the charge of stealing forty boxes of cigars from Mr. Bonman, in this city. Kelly plead guilty and testified that Keating had nothing to do with the theft, and had not known of the deed having been done until the evening after it occurred. A long cross-examination of the witness by Prosecuting Attorney McCord failed to break this testimony. Keating, however, was charged also with receiving the stolen goods and on this charge was found guilty by the jury. Frederick Higgins was tried on the charge of the larceny of a gold watch from W. J. Maguire in Colorado City last July. The plaintiff testified that he had gone into a restaurant in company with the defendant to get something to eat. Both had stepped into the back yard for a minute when Higgins snatched Maguire's watch from him and escaped through the back alley. Higgins acknowledged having had the watch and disposing of it, but claimed that Maguire gave it to him to raise some money on it, the former being drunk at the time and out of money. The jury found the defendant guilty and assessed the value of the watch at $22 making the [illegible] of said larceny.

The engagement of Louis James and Marie Wainwright in a change of plays at the Opera house, next Friday and Saturday evenings, promises to be the success of the season. These well known stars were always favorites here, whether they came as stars or as supporting other actors. The repertoire for the engagement is as follows: Friday evening "Othello." Saturday evening, School for Scandal." An exchange, in speaking of the former play, says: In Othello Mr. James of Venice, Mr. James and Miss Wainwright are at all times equal to their fame. Though it is often held that Iago is the greater character of the two, that is the character in which the greatest acting is required, when Mr. James as the lago stood on the Moor is seen, one is not [illegible] Iago. He plays it with [illegible] and his lines in that stage have the true natural ring in them the physical manifestations of the latter being especially impressive. As Desdemona Miss Wainwright is sweetly [illegible] and it affords her the opportunity for the showing of some of the most elegant costumes ever seen on the stage. Her portrayal is justly considered the best on the stage."

Manager of the Gazette.

The Rev. Mr. Funk expresses himself as very much pleased with the results of the election. He must refer to the election of the saloon keepers' candidate for governor of New York. This was the only distinct effect which the prohibitionists had in the canvass.

Those who wagered that Harrison could not carry New York state by ten thousand majority might just as well make up their minds to lose. Many of the bets made during the recent election were made from patriotic feelings, to show faith in the principles of the party. Why not use the winnings patriotically? Enough was won on the election to build a club house for Colorado college, that is so much needed.

The southern newspapers are a good deal rattled at the result of the election. The St. Louis Republic has come out in favor of high license. The Atlanta Constitution talks hysterically about the need of a solid south, while the Richmond Inquirer is trying to explain the stealing of the electoral vote in Virginia by the democracy. The St. Louis Republic is the only paper on the right track. The south does not need power, but solid, industrious citizens, who care more for honest administration, for home vote and honest support than they do for power. The south needs more northern capital than it does seats in congress.

Some little stir was created among the Knights of Labor at Indianapolis the other day by the refusal of the mayor to grant them the use of the chairs in Tomlinson hall for their general assembly. It seems that the request for the chairs was made by E. F. Gould, the author of the "dollar a day" Beaudette Central Harrison [illegible] ing the vile slander which this fellow Gould had maliciously circulated against it refused the request. He however notified the general officers of the assembly that they could have anything they wanted that was in his power to give, but he did not care to be [illegible] favors upon or convey them through a perjurer.

The adverse decision of the supreme court in the case of ex Judge Terry of California, who, alleging that he is unlawfully imprisoned, asked for a writ of habeas corpus, finally disposes of that celebrated case, and Judge Terry will serve out his sentence of six months. The violent scene in which both Judge Terry and his wife attacked the officers of the court was open and gross contempt of the court, and the sentence which was inflicted was well deserved. The fact of Judge Terry's long and honorable career on the bench, which was brought up in his defense, made his offense all the worse. He should have known better.

"The Voice," the organ of the prohibition party in New York, in reviewing the late election says editorially: "The election last Tuesday was a greater victory for the prohibition party than it was for Harrison and Morton." Since Gen. Fisk's vote in New York was about 11,000 less than the vote of the third party's candidate for secretary of state last year, it is impossible to say that "The Voice" regards this as a victory for the prohibition cause. The victory referred to must be the success of the democratic saloon candidate for governor, whose election was largely due to the aid which he directly and indirectly received from the prohibition party.

Last year the republican majority in the New Jersey legislature passed a local option bill which, notwithstanding the veto of the democratic governor, finally became a law. Now all this ground gained by the temperance cause is destined to be lost through the election of a democratic legislature. The liquor representatives in the latter have declared their intention of preventing the transaction of any other business until the local option bill is repealed, and there is no doubt that they have a sufficient majority to carry out their threat. As the election of a United States senator is in the programme of business, it is not likely that the democrats who are opposed to the repeal of the bill will hold to their opinions and thus create a dissension which might result in the election of a republican to the senate. So the local option bill must go, and the saloon will reign again.

While the English newspapers, apropos of the Sackville letter, were speaking of the low political tricks of this country, the people of England were also giving an exhibition. Gladstone was making a trip across the country. At various places where he was invited to speak, the opposition party made so much noise that Mr. Gladstone could not be heard. There is no parallel to this during the latter campaign that is just ended. The American people hold that every man has the right to think for himself and to express his views. An audience is gentlemanly enough to allow a speaker in the opposite party to have his say. The correspondent of the New York Times recently visited a public library in England and found in the index to the library some four hundred references to Gladstone. Most of these were political pamphlets of the worst description. It is useless to defend the peculiarities of the American newspaper. It can still be said, however, that they are worse in our mother country. For brutality and scurrility, nothing in our political literature has equalled those [illegible] written against Mr. Gladstone.
